Secured Credit Cards A security deposit must be established in order to determine your credit limit. If security deposit funds have not been received within 30 days, the application will be deemed withdrawn and you will have to reapply to be considered for a credit card account. Approved applicants will not be allowed to make transactions using the security deposit funds. The security deposit will be available for withdrawal only after your credit card account has been closed and all amounts owing having been paid in full. By entering into a credit card agreement, you are specifically authoring the Bank to charge against the security deposit funds to pay any sums representing an unpaid balance of the aforesaid credit card account, if not otherwise paid by the undersigned.

Military Lending Act: Federal law provides important protections to members of the Armed Forces and their dependents relating to extensions of consumer credit. In general, the cost of consumer credit to a member of the Armed Forces and his or her dependent may not exceed an annual percentage rate of 36 percent. This rate must include, as applicable to the credit transaction or account: The costs associated with credit insurance premiums; fees for ancillary products sold in connection with the credit transaction; any application fee charged (other than certain application fees for specified credit transactions or accounts); and any participation fee charged (other than certain participation on fees for a credit card account).
